Noisy Salute to Aquarius

PRE-BALL HOOPLA PARADE TO CELEBRATE AQUARIUS COSTUME BALL

The Aquarius Costume Ball, a benefit for the Mattapoisett Museum to be held at Shining Tides on Saturday, September 13th, will get off to a noisy start Saturday, September 6th, at 6:30 P.M. when William Croft, chairman of the event, heads up a parade of unique and colorful vehicles with costumed drivers that will assemble at Long Wharf. With permission of the Selectmen, fire and police departments, Peter Kodis will fire 12 volleys from an antique cannon, one shot for each sign of the Zodiac calendar which is the theme for this year's costume ball. The parade route will start at the wharf and travel east on Water Street to Oakland Street, west along Church Street, up North Street and along Hammond Street to Main Street where it will disband at the Mattapoisett Inn for a toast to Aquarius, the Waterbearer. Final plans for the Ball are nearing completion and Mrs. Clifford Tripp, Jr., ticket chairman, urges residents to make reservations early if they plan to attend. The decorating committee, headed by Mrs. David McCormack, will have the interior of Shining Tides studded with glittering MYC guide buoy and back to finish at Ned's Point MYC guide buoy.

By the time the fleet of five Corinthians rounded the Crescent Beach marker, the last glimmer of the setting sun had vanished and the second half of the race then became a moonlight sail.

As the race progressed, the lead changed hands several times, as did the other positions as well.

At the start, R. Eustis in Lisa was out front, with F. Klein second. A fourth of the way to the marker, H. Pentleton in Lulu overtook Klein and at the halfway mark moved into the lead.

The wind, shifting slightly to the east, brought Lisa back into first place again.

As the fleet rounded the Crescent Beach marker, the positions changed once more, now with Sue McGowan first, R. Eustis second, H. Pentleton third, Tom Clark's Instead fourth, and F. Klein fifth.

The ever fickle winds, shifting back to south-southwest, brought still a different line-up: Sue McGowan in Irish Eyes, continuing in the lead, followed by Klein's Iterate, Eustis' Lisa, Clark's Instead, and Pentleton in Lulu. The boats crossed the finish line in that order.

THE ROYAL PURPLE GRAPE

One of the all-time favorite fruits for jam making is the Concord grape. Plan to make a batch of this most royal of jams when the fragrant, juicy fruit arrives at the fruit stands. By using Sure-Jell Fruit Pectin, you can use grapes at their peak of ripeness and flavor; the short-boil method also means a greater yield per pound of fruit.

GRAPE JAM

6 cups prepared fruit (about 4 lb. fully ripe Concord or other loose-skinned grapes and 1 cup water)
7½ cups (3¼ lb.) sugar
1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered fruit pectin

First prepare the fruit. Slip skins from about 4 pounds loose-skinned grapes. Add 1 cup water to pulp; bring to a boil and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. Sieve to remove seeds. Chop or grind skins and add to pulp. Measure 6 cups into a very large saucepan. Then make the jam. Measure sugar and set aside. Mix fruit pectin into fruit in saucepan. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Immediately add all sugar and stir. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1 minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim for 5 minutes to cool slightly and to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover at once with ⅛ inch hot paraffin. Makes 13 medium glasses.

Children - and Traffic

BACK TO SCHOOL SAFETY

The trouble with children is they act like kids. They plunge into the bright crispness of September with a hop, skip and a jump, right back into school. With children, the changing season and another school year is routine in their secure, young world.

However, we as adults know that the world is neither young nor secure. In fact it can be downright insecure in our present motorized civilization where it seems that the automobile is pitted against society in general and children in particular.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health says that according to the National Safety Council, approximately 5,000 boys and girls will never reach their 15th birthday because of traffic accidents. It is not surprising then to find that when children start their annual trek back to the classroom, the problem of automobile accidents reaches its peak.

Despite good training at home, children, especially little ones, indulge in unpredictable and many times, dangerous behavior. They plow through the fallen leaves in gutters to hear the swishy sounds. They chase toys and race in the street or dash after a high-fly ball from behind parked cars. They jaywalk and often don't even see traffic signals, particularly if there's a low flying jet zooming across the sky.

Drivers of cars must be scrupulously careful. They must never mistake a child's lack of thought for stupidity. It's just that children are so caught up in their own imaginative, carefree world that they can't understand the frightening dangers surrounding them. An uncluttered freedom of mind is a luxury only the young can afford, and sometimes even youth pays a heavy price for it.

With every privilege, such as operating a car, comes a heavy burden of responsibility which the motor vehicle operator can never evade where children are concerned. He must be constantly thinking and everlastingly watchful in thickly settled areas and school zones.

ANNIVERSARY OF AN UNFORGETTABLE STORM

No eyewitness to the 1954 hurricane is likely to forget it. The great storm which happened 15 years ago is forever etched with great clarity in countless minds. This Presto cover depicted the storm at its height at the Mattapoisett wharf as it was drawn immediately after the event. This is how it looked to the reporter on that disastrous day.

This September will mark a great turning point in the lives of many youngsters, they'll attend school for the first time. There will be others returning for a new school year, and still others of preschool age will be left behind to carry on the important and serious business of play.

For the new student, it's a good idea for a parent to walk him to and from school for the first day or two, taking care not to be over-protective or allowing the child to become too dependent. Teach him the safest route, even though it may take a few minutes longer. Go to crossing or intersections where there are traffic signals or a policeman or woman on duty. Caution the older child in the family to keep alert and help smaller children in areas of heavy traffic. Instruct bicycle riders to always observe the rules of the highway. Teach accident prevention to children who travel by bus by reminding them that horseplay, loudness, poking heads and arms out windows are all hazards that not only disturb the operator but subject everyone to danger.

Parents should realize that it is their job to instill in their children an attitude of safety, composed of awareness, foresight and good judgment. These habits must be taught at home. A child who has been properly instructed gains a confidence that instinctively directs him. He thinks more rapidly and often more sensibly. Generally he can lead others as well as himself to safety. Parents should also keep in mind that safety instruction is never wasted or given too early in life. What your child learns now may save his life.

Dick Flynn of New England Telephone says "Today's telephone network, like a broad highway that carries different autos and vehicles, carries a vast variety of information.

"Time was when the telephone network implied only facilities for talk between people. But that's no longer true. Today it means sending information, whether it is teen-age chatter, the nightly television news program or the thumping of an ailing heart undergoing long distance diagnosis.

"Any type of information that can be converted into electronic vibrations or pulses has a valid passport into the nationwide communications network." Flynn said the Bell System estimates that by 1975 there will be as much information transmitted between machines on the network as talk between people.

and New Hampshire use the buttons on Touch-Tone telephones to place orders and report sales results to the company's headquarters in Lowell, Mass. This information is automatically recorded on a teletypewriter in Lowell.

Touch-Tone can be used in applications such as the Shawmut and Scott examples regardless of whether the telephone company's local central office is equipped for Touch-Tone.

When a regular telephone call is made, devices at the originating end of the connection convert the voice into electrical patterns.

At the other end the receiver converts the electrical waves back into sound waves. It works the same with other communications devices, whether they are teletypewriters with the written word or Data-Phones with computer language.
